PAPA'S CAFÉ BUILDING

1605 the house was in a process of being built when Richard Nash died. But he left it to his son, John Nash, who became later alderman. 1633 John Nash became a mayor of Worcester. In 1674 he left the house to his kinsman, Richard Nash of Droitwich. He moved into the house in the same year and made alterations, adding 2 new chimneys and coach access. There is also a probability that he gave the house its name. 1689 John Hughes, alderman, purchased the house. In the 17th Century the fine four-storey timber-framed town house, was then a furniture shop belonging to the Slade family.
